Raptivity Wins 3 Gold Awards

Training Australia Magazine named the LearnX Asia Pacific 2009 E-Learning & Training Award winners of its prestigious awards program. Raptivity, the leading rapid interactivity building tool by Harbinger Knowledge Products, won 3 Gold awards in 'Best Rapid E-Learning Tool', 'Best Simulation Solution' and 'Best Assessment Tool' categories.

LearnX Asia Pacific 2009 E-Learning & Training Awards program is described as Asia Pacific's first and only independent awards program for the region's learning and development industries. This award program honors workforce learning and supporting technologies including innovative learning initiatives used in learning that have been voted by the users of these technologies to be the best in class.

"With a bumpy economic year ahead, there will be tough decisions and challenges for many e-learning and training professionals and the awards highlight how the corporate, education and public service sectors see training as a major strength in driving increased productivity, reducing costs and building staff confidence in these uncertain times," said Executive Editor Rob Clarke.

"Harbinger Group is delighted to be the recipient of these awards," said Vikas Joshi, Chairman and Managing Director of Harbinger Group. "This recognition comes close on heels with Raptivity being voted as winner of UK-based Software Satisfaction Awards 2008. Harbinger will continue its innovation in rapid interactivity technology and consolidate its global leadership in this space."

These awards are special because these are based on the voting done by Raptivity users who use our products on daily basis. We would like to thank our users for endorsing their satisfaction in using Raptivity. Harbinger Group will receive these awards at LearnX Asia Pacific 2009 live event in Sydney next month.
