Raptivity Wins 'Best Rapid eLearning Tool' Platinum Award

Training Australia Magazine named the LearnX Asia Pacific 2010 E-Learning & Training Award winners of its prestigious awards program. Raptivity, the leading rapid interactivity building tool by Harbinger Knowledge Products, won 'Best Rapid E-Learning Tool' Platinum Award and 'Best Simulation Solution' Gold Award.

LearnX Asia Pacific 2010 E-Learning & Training Awards program is described as Asia Pacific's first and only independent awards program for the region's learning and development industries. This award program honors workforce learning and supporting technologies including innovative learning initiatives used in learning that have been voted by the users of these technologies to be the best in class.

"These awards are regarded as the most prestigious accolades and recognition that an individual, team or organisation from the corporate and public service sectors in e-learning and training can achieve", said Rob Clarke, founder and event organiser of the LearnX Asia Pacific Conference and Expo. "The winning solutions and the talent behind the many projects stand out for implementing innovative based e-learning and training in their organisations", he added.

"This is a great honor for Harbinger Knowledge Products and we are delighted to repeat our success in this award," said Vikas Joshi, Chairman and Managing Director of Harbinger Group. "Raptivity is making a difference to thousands of educators and learners in over 45 countries by providing them an easy way to create highly interactive eLearning experiences affordably and easily. We are glad to see that through these awards, our users have endorsed their satisfaction in using Raptivity. Harbinger will continue its innovation in rapid interactivity technology and consolidate its global leadership in this space", he added.

Harbinger Group will receive these awards at LearnX Asia Pacific 2010 live event in Sydney in June 2010.
